

One of my passions is motorcycles. Every year I attend the BikeShed Motoshow at Tobacco Dock, London. A celebration of custom motorcycles. Originally I attended to view the motorcycles, however, over the years, my passion for motorcycles has combined with my passion for photography, particularly street photography, so my emphasis shifted to taking photographs of the people who attend the event, the bikers. The following set of photographs attempt to give a sense of the atmosphere created by the event.